FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE 4/17/2012

Sternco Engineers celebrates new P.E.

YUMA, ARIZONA –Matt Larson, a Mechanical Engineer with Sternco Engineers, Inc. has completed all the requirements and has become a professional engineer. After passing his P.E. Exam, the board of technical registration approved Matt's application on March, 27, 2012, and he is officially a registered engineer. Larson graduated in 2005 with a Bachelors of Science Degree in Mechanical Engineering from South Dakota State University. He grew up in Starbuck, MN and started with Sternco in May, 2009.

Larson stated that his two biggest accomplishments in life are getting married to his wife Sara, also with Sternco Engineers, and passing the P.E. He and Sara are enjoying living in Yuma and have become fond of the people and the weather.

Statistics show that the overall pass rate for the P.E. exam is just 70% for first-time takers, and 34% for repeat takers. "Having another P.E. in the Sternco family allows us to continue to provide the best service possible to our clients," stated owner John Sternitzke.

Sternco Engineers is a full service consulting engineering firm. Their primary market is within a 175 mile radius of Yuma, Arizona. This includes from the Colorado River in Yuma to Kingman, Arizona and Imperial County, El Centro. They provide engineering and consulting for HVAC, plumbing, fire protection, commissioning, energy audits; sustainable design, LEED; and architectural services.

Sternco Engineers will celebrate their 20th anniversary this year. "This is one more candle on the cake. We couldn't be more proud of Matt," added Sternitzke.
